whom 1 have sent several dispatches, to send on my views to you. It is now 6 p. M. and I am sending oft your aide-de-camp, with a duplicate copy of my orders, and he has promised me that he will reach yon by six in the morning. We have heard the sound of guns from between Pfaffcn-hofen arid Freising, We are moving towards one another.

18th, 4 A.U.I

It appears as though the Archduke Charles were moving on the line Landshut Ratishou.

(To Massdna, Duke of Ilivoli.) In a word you will see the whole situation. Prince Charles debouched yesterday from Landshut on Ratisbon with his whole army; he had three corps, estimated at 80,000 men. You therefore perceive that then* never was a stroke that demanded more energy and swiftness than thin.

Rapidity! Activity! activity! All lies with you!

gOth, Vohburg:

I am in the muddle to get to the outposts and see things for myself. I shall attack the enemy if they are still in position, and pursue them rapidly if they are retreating.

£lst, Ilohr:

Yesterday and day before are a second Jena. The Duke of Rivoli flhould have reached Landshut (yesterday) at three in the afternoon.

£2d, Landahut;

I shall be at Brgoltubaeh before noon. If I hear the gum, that will b« a mffieient signal for ma to attack. I am determined to destroy the army of Prince Charles to-day, or at lateit to-morrow,

(Order,) The Duke of Rivoli will move on EekmttW
